The Law Office of Linda L.Piff, LLC.

DO IT YOURSELF

If you choose to obtain a divorce yourself, Divorce My Way Online can help provide you with the necessary tools for you to obtain a divorce without the stress of completing it alone and the costs associated with hiring an attorney.

LITIGATE YOUR DIVORCE

If you choose to litigate your divorce, your attorney will represent your interests in court. If you choose to litigate, be prepared for the possibility of delays, increased costs, and stress.

COLLABORATIVE METHOD

Collaborative Divorce is a process where you and your spouse hire your own attorneys, and all four of you work with financial advisors, therapists, and other collaborative divorce professionals to reach a settlement agreement. In doing so, the professionals work diligently to help you and your spouse remain out of court.

WORK WITH A MEDIATOR

Mediation is an alternative to traditional divorce litigation that allows couples to come to a resolution of their issues without going to court. In mediation, a neutral party, the mediator, helps the couple identify the issues that need to be resolved and help them to come an agreement.

KITCHEN TABLE DIVORCE

In a Kitchen Table Divorce, both parties sit down and work out all support and equitable distribution issues between themselves, creating a terms of agreement together. One or both parties hire an attorney to review the agreement and advise as to the law. Each party reviews the terms of the agreement (with their attorneys) and then the agreement is finalized by both parties. Once this occurs, one spouse can file for uncontested divorce.
